

SPORTS

BOSTON RUINS DETROIT

RED SOX TAKING MEASURE OF TYGERS EASILY

SPORTS

Somebody Is Always Taking the Joy Out of Life

By Briggs

POP GEERS IS INJURED

VETERAN DRIVER SENT TO HOSPITAL AFTER ACCIDENT

First Choices Win in All Events, Sweeping Card Clean—Peter Stevens

COLUMBUS, O., September 26.—First choices swept all three events at this afternoon's grand circuit races. Peter Stevens was the first to make his trial to beat 2:02 1-4, and Edward Geers, veteran driver, was injured when Sir Anthony, his horse, hit a post. His Hotel Hartman stake candidate went into a pile that was caused when Ruthie, his horse, hit a post. Mr. Geers is in a hospital badly bruised.

Peter Look won in straight heats the Horse Review futurity pace.

Helen Todd, from Olympia, won the Hotel Hartman racing stake, the second heat being taken away from him by Young Todd, from which Walter Cox got a mile in 2:02 1-4, the fastest ever done by a four-year-old pacer.

It was not far turn in the first heat that Rythmund, Jr., Sir Anthony Carter was too close to another division. Driver Geers was pitched high into the air. In falling, he alighted on his right shoulder. The problem still further bad, was driven wide just in time to keep T. W. Murphy from being thrown. Rythmund's driver was not hurt.

Esperanza won the 2:07 trot, Sister Strong being a good contender.

Peter Look, from Olympia, did the first heat in 2:01 1-4, and reached the half in 2:01 3-4 seconds, and reached the half in a minute flat. The third quarter was the fastest of all, being in 2:01 1-4 seconds.

The total time was in 2:01 1-2.

The summaries:

2:07 class: trotting, three in five; $1,200.

Esperanza, b. m., by Caribean.

Driver Geers, b. m., by Strong.

Sister Strong, b. m., by Strong.

Boy Valentine, b. m., by Strong.

Mirthful, b. m., by Star of Patchon. Murphy, 1 2 4 4 4 4.

Sir Anthony, b. m., by Star of Patchon. Murphy, 1 2 4 4 4 4.

2:01 1-4, 2:09 1-4, 2:07 1-4, 2:08 1-2.

Horse Review futurity, three-year-old pacers; two in three, $2,000.

Peter Look, b. c., by Peter the Great.

Tramp-A-Bill, 1 1.

The Alm Bill, by McMahon, 3 3.

Flora Strathmore, ch. (Hall), 3 3.

Nadine and Rose Magee also ran.

Hotel Hartman, 2:03 class; three in five; $1,500.

Ben Earth, b. m., by the Earl Childs.

Young Todd, b. g., by Direct.

Sir Anthony Carter, b. h., by Strong.

Geers-McMahon, 7 6 2 2.

Peter Nash, Tramp-A-Bill, May Fern and Rythmund also ran.

Time, 2:01 1-4, 2:02 1-4, 2:04 1-4, 2:06 1-2.

To beat 2:02 1-4 pacing, Peter Stevens, b. h., by the Peter the Great (Murphy), won. Time, 2:01 1-2.

Among the horses on the Grand Circuit now in Columbus, Ohio, are Alma Forbes, Bertha McGuire and Peter Worth, owned by James O. Winston of Richmond. Bertha McGuire was reared at Curle's Neck Farm. The Curle's Neck horses are showing up well this season. Among them may be mentioned Expressive Lou, who wins the North Randolph sweepstakes for three-year-olds.

Louise, a gelding, is a good animal.

Loring, a gelding, has turned his eyes again to Virginia as the place where good animals can be brought up. There are those who expect great things of the Virginia horses now on the Grand Circuit, for they are young and have many seasons ahead yet before they are turned back to the pasture.

The Grand Circuit is calling forth the fastest animals in the country this year. Probably no one season has seen such a large number of fast horses. It is a source of considerable pride to local lovers of the track to know that Virginia horses are more than holding their own.

BLACK PRINCE IS SOLD

WINCHESTER, VA., September 26.—Black Prince, Jr., a noted show ring horse, which has been greatly admired by patrons of horse shows in Virginia and the Southern States, will be sold in October. He was sold in Roger C. Jones' stable at Winchester to B. F. Garber, of Harrisonburg, at a fancy price. Black Prince, Jr., has been a consistent winner of blue ribbons, having won over some of the best horses in the country.

HARVARD WINS AT GOLF

PITTTSBURGH, September 26.—John Barber, representing Harvard, won the national golf back of the Washington and Lee University football eleven last season, announced his retirement from the game to-day. He will enter business.

Barrett Quits Football.

CHICAGO, September 26.—John Barber, representing Harvard, won the national golf back of the Washington and Lee University football eleven last season, announced his retirement from the game to-day. He will enter business.

As Gibbons has taken unto himself a manager—not, nor a wife, the already has a family), but a man served in ring matters—will may expect to see him in action more often than heretofore. The first stroke of Mike's new mentor will be to arrange the Dillon match. Said manager realized that Mike must do more fighting—and more efficient fighting—to resuscitate his grip on the public's favor.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

At the time we warned Gibbons that Lewis was on his trial. We take this means of warning. Next year we may be impelled to warn Jess Willard of the Lewis peril.

Lewis is not seeking matches with the mediocre light heavies. Jack Dillon is the one he desires most to engage in mortal combat. It may be ridiculous for a legitimate 128 pounder to ever dream of fighting Dillon. But remember, Lewis was also ridiculous when he suggested bout with Gibbons. Ed Ted-Kid went out and polished off the crafty Michael in ten spirited rounds.

At the time we warned Gibbons that Lewis was on his trial. We take this means of warning. Next year we may be impelled to warn Jess Willard of the Lewis peril.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

As Gibbons has taken unto himself a manager—not, nor a wife, the already has a family), but a man served in ring matters—will may expect to see him in action more often than heretofore. The first stroke of Mike's new mentor will be to arrange the Dillon match. Said manager realized that Mike must do more fighting—and more efficient fighting—to resuscitate his grip on the public's favor.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons is not seeking matches with the mediocre light heavies. Jack Dillon is the one he desires most to engage in mortal combat. It may be ridiculous for a legitimate 128 pounder to ever dream of fighting Dillon. But remember, Lewis was also ridiculous when he suggested bout with Gibbons. Ed Ted-Kid went out and polished off the crafty Michael in ten spirited rounds.

At the time we warned Gibbons that Lewis was on his trial. We take this means of warning. Next year we may be impelled to warn Jess Willard of the Lewis peril.

Lewis is not seeking matches with the mediocre light heavies. Jack Dillon is the one he desires most to engage in mortal combat. It may be ridiculous for a legitimate 128 pounder to ever dream of fighting Dillon. But remember, Lewis was also ridiculous when he suggested bout with Gibbons. Ed Ted-Kid went out and polished off the crafty Michael in ten spirited rounds.

At the time we warned Gibbons that Lewis was on his trial. We take this means of warning. Next year we may be impelled to warn Jess Willard of the Lewis peril.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all of these oft-declared statements that Gibbons is jeopardizing his publicist future.

Any man who faces Dillon in the henchman square jeopardizes his future—and his life. Thus far every one of Dillon's foes has escaped with his life, and many promising ones he has ruined.

Gibbons insists he was—and still is—of same mind when he consented to spar off with the Indianapolis manager. He was of such same mind that he made Dillon agreed to make weight for the fight, and the latter, at a tinge of safron wherever the going got too heavy. It is to disprove all